stand by the Nominations.
We understand that there is a movement on the part of some Democrats of this city to get up an independent ticket. This is decidedly wrong. Nominations have been made, in accordance with the usages of the party and the duty of every Democrat to vindicate their support. The party is in our national affairs, it most certainly behoves Democrats to guard against divisions amongst themselves. Too much importance cannot be attached to the election of our entire ticket. Saying nothing about the manner in which the convention was conducted, the Democracy of the city have presented to their constituents a ticket that is entitled to their cordial support. The candidates are all able, obliging and competent men, and every Democrat should do his best to elect them.

It is said that the principal opposition is to be made against our nominees for Collector and Marshal. We regret this. This fighting against the regular party nominees is bad policy, and should be discouraged by every Democrat.

We are aware that in every convention there are occurrences unwaranted by principle and a regard for the will of the people. The one on Saturday was characterized by some of the evils which belong to the system, but not enough to justify Democrats in opposing any of the nominees.

If faulting in regard to the doings of the convention is justifiable, probably one of the critics of this paper has grounds for serious objections. He was deceived and betrayed by those who should have been his fast friends. There were some three or four delegates in that convention whom, during the last two years, it so transpired that he was the means of being elected to offices of profit, time and again, who ungratefully betrayed him, against the wishes of a majority of the people who appointed them, and, through a base scheme, cast their ballots against him. But he does not feel justified in opposing the nominations or trying to injure the party, because of the ungrateful conduct and treachery of some of the members of the convention.

The arriving of millions of supplies and men in the way of reinforcements (how much and many) is improper for us to mention at this time) will speedily put the army in moving condition; and when it does move, look out for stirring scenes and thunderous battles. The rebels are at full strength and their numbers are increasing. In the way of discipline, "We know they will simply show a front of resistance in front, holding in back if they can, and retreat when compelled, across the Tennessee river at Chattanooga." All the army now is at Murfreesboro, Johnston & G. W. Smith, stand fairly at Nashville. If they do, their army will be annihilated. This army has now learned how to fight—old rugged, under their chief, has been settled out. Incompetent and worse than useless officers have gone under, and good ones have come up. The rebels are well informed as to our strategy, and learned the art of war, but, however, have learned the trick how to go in and win. There will be no more surprising or brilliant victory than the fighting method used by the rebels in the first day's fight. Within thirty days, the rebel army will be driven from Tennessee. I predict, nothing extraordinary in wind or weather can prevent it.

For Marshal, Edward McGee is the present. He has held the office during the past year, and has proved a faithful and efficient officer. Notwithstanding the city seems inclined to compensate policemen for abandoning their posts and notwithstanding our city has been visited and infested by many lawless characters, our citizens will hold on very well, and will be able to defend themselves without any trouble.

For Collector, James O'Reilly is the present. He is a good man, and has shown himself up to the fighting method used by the rebels in the first day's fight. Within thirty days, the rebel army will be driven from Tennessee. I predict, nothing extraordinary in wind or weather can prevent it.

For Assessor, J. H. Quinn is the candidate for Attorney. This is a good nomination.

For City Attorney, John H. Quinn is or what are his qualifications. The voters of this city know him, and will take delight in giving him the office of Assessor, regardless of the fact that it was not more lucrative.
